office for noon. I said this would be fine, and alerted Messrs. and of OCI, who will brief Mr. Minshall in preparation for his upcoming visit to 25X1A 5. George Murphy, Joint Committee on Atomic Energy staff, called with regard to this morning's article in the New York Times stating that Secretary Laird had disclosed Soviet MIRV tests. I advised Murphy that we are quite certain that Secretary Laird had not discussed MIRVs in his press conference yesterday and the Time article was inaccurate in this respect. I pointed out that a similar article	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·

Dorothy Fosdick, Staff Director, Senate Subcommittee on National Security and International Operations, called and said Senator Jackson had asked her to get a briefing on the implication of the article in the New York Times stating that the Soviets had conducted MIRV tests. I told Miss Fosdick that the insertion of the "I" in this across was an error on the part of the New York Times. Later in the day I accompanied Mr. David Brandwein to a briefing of Miss Fosdick on the	£
